Picture this: you're sun-kissed and sipping retsina in your private plunge pool, watching as the sun puts on a blood-orange spectacle before it dips into the Aegean Sea. Whether you've come to Mykonos on a honeymoon or a mission to hit all the best beach clubs, you're in luck: the relatively small island, which stretches just 33 square miles, is home to hundreds of the chicest, most luxurious hotels and private villas in the Cyclades — and frankly, the world.

With so many options for where to stay — from charming, family-run properties skirting the action in chora (Greek for “town”) to exclusive sanctuaries built into the cliffs on the island's southeast coast — it can be nearly impossible to narrow down the best options.

To help you plan the perfect trip, we've researched the best hotels and resorts in Mykonos. We've included award-winning properties that earned coveted spots on our annual T+L World's Best Awards list, which features properties voted on by thousands of T+L readers, and It List — our exclusive list of the hottest new hotel openings of the year — as well as our personal favorite places to stay when we're on the island for both proximity and privacy.

The Wild Hotel

What We Like: The hotel's new restaurant, Raw, serves refreshing Greek-Japanese food with unbeatable views from small terraces built into the cliffside.

What to Consider: Both Raw and the hotel's private beach are only accessible by natural stone steps, meaning this isn't a great option for those with reduced mobility.

Rather than shelling out hundreds of dollars for a daybed at an overcrowded beach club, consider booking a room at The Wild Hotel, a 40 suite- and villa-property perched over the best (and only) private beach in Mykonos. This idyllic swimming hole boasts a curved, sandy crescent that's protected from the island's strong summer winds, and attentive staff who will make sure you have whatever you need (a cocktail, sunscreen, beach snacks — you name it).

The property is built into and on top of the cliff: the hotel's newest restaurant, Raw, is a collection of vertical terraces built into the cliffside, each featuring a rustic table setup where Greek-Japanese fare (like Mediterranean-inspired maki rolls) is served at sundown, and later by candlelight. It's one of the most romantic dining destinations on the island, and one you should be sure to book ahead given its intimate size.

The hotel is hewn from natural materials — it's all unfinished wood, rough stone, and earthy terracotta, with handmade textiles and objects decorating the cozy rooms. Its centerpiece glistens atop the cliff: an angular, infinity-edge pool where guests (who skew youthful, hip, and international) sip cocktails and strike up conversations.
